Custom Minaret Finials

The University of Tampa
401 West Kennedy Blvd.
Tampa, FL 33606

If you have driven through downtown Tampa, you have seen the minarets on The University of Tampa's Plant Hall. Plant Hall has many Moorish influences and its minarets are a leading example of Moorish Revival architecture in the southeastern United States.

Plant Hall, formerly known as the Tampa Bay Hotel, was first built by Henry B. Plant in 1891. The building is now a National Historic Landmark and serves as the University of Tampa's main building. Plant Hall accommodates classrooms, faculty and administration offices and is home to the Henry B. Plant Museum, a museum dedicated to the glory days of the Tampa Bay Hotel.

The minaret is a symbol that resonates around The University of Tampa so much that the University's student-run newspaper is called The Minaret. Creative Mailbox & Sign Designs had the opportunity to work with the University of Tampa to fabricate and install decorative street signage for the University campus. The street signs were custom designed for UT with cast resin minaret finials.

Featured Project

Esplanade at Lakewood Ranch

Esplanade, the only “active lifestyle village” in Lakewood Ranch, is nestled just north of State Road 70. The community, built by Taylor Morrison, consists of 1250 Mediterranean inspired detached villas and single family homes.

Esplanade residents enjoy resort-style amenities such as a heated lagoon-style pool and spa, pickleball and bocce courts, and a beautiful clubhouse complete with fitness and aerobics center, grand ballroom, billiard room, and more. The property has miles of walking trails with meandering lakes. Esplanade has been designed so that each home has a premium view of the lakes and Florida-friendly landscaping.

Lakewood Ranch is the largest green certified community in America and the second best-selling master-planned community in Florida. As part of Lakewood Ranch, Esplanade residents will enjoy the many commercial and recreational opportunities Lakewood Ranch has to offer.

Creative Mailbox & Sign Designs was happy to work with Taylor Morrison to provide custom, decorative street signs and CBUs, and wayfinding for the community. The street signs have fluted posts with custom finials and cast black paddles with white copy. The CBU components are intended to provide a cohesive look with the street signs.
